Hotel Atlantic Kempinski Hamburg

Gracious Living in One of the Leading Grand Hotels

Hamburg, Germany, March 2010: From winter 2010 on, Hotel Atlantic Kempinski Hamburg will invite its guests to stay in completely refurbished rooms and suites. Already since the beginning of the year, the traditional Hanseatic house has been subject to the most comprehensive restoration activities of its 100 year old history. All rooms, suites, and corridors of the historic main building's four floors will be renovated from the ground up for about 25 million euros.

Once the refurbishment is finished, the venerable Grand Hotel on the Outer Alster will have 221 completely redesigned rooms and 80 suites, all held in the historically inspired Hanseatic style and with an average space of 40 square metres. Technical equipment will include flat screen Sat TV, computer connections, broadband WLAN, electronic room safe, and individually adjustable air conditioning. The experience of staying at the “new” Atlantic will be rounded off by generously dimensioned bathrooms with twin sinks, spacious bathtubs, separate rain showers, and separate toilet. And the 45 new Alster rooms will be the gems of all lovers of Hamburg: with their floor-to-ceiling windows directed to the river Alster and the city centre these rooms stage one of the most beautiful views over the Northern-German metropolis. Total privacy and living culture at the highest level will also be offered by the 80 new suites. Owing to their very generous dimensions and their extravagant blend of classic Grand Hotel elegance and modern design they will satisfy the wishes of even the most demanding travellers.

Comprehensive and innovative services

Committed to the tradition of luxury Grand Hotels, the Atlantic ensures a stay without worries all around the clock – for everybody, including the smaller hotel guests. Children up to the age of 12 can stay in an extra bed in their parents' room free of charge. Those who are no older than five can even enjoy food and drinks throughout their stay without extra cost. Other truly extraordinary services include baggage packing and unpacking upon request, coffee and tea served upon the wake-up call, late riser breakfast at weekends until 12.00 noon, courier services or business services such as faxing and laminating or binding documents. Guests arriving by train will be awaited at the train station by a bellboy who accompanies them to the hotel. And those who suffer from jet lag can order their “body clock breakfast” to be served in their room anytime according to their individual body rhythm.
