A HARMONIOUS BLEND OF TIMELESS HERITAGE WITH MODERN LUXURY

At the junction of Stamford Road and North Bridge Road, the gigantic movie billboards of a famed picture house once promised to whisk visitors away to worlds they never imagined. Today, an iconic European luxury brand stands ready to do the same.

The Capitol Kempinski Hotel Singapore opened on 1 October 2018 in the heart of the Lion City's Civic and Cultural district, bringing with it the promise of ultra-luxe European hospitality and no shortage of gastronomic adventure.

The opening of the 155-room luxury hotel follows years of meticulous restoration and renovation by acclaimed architect and Pritzker Architecture Prize winner Richard Meier, to bring out the best of the neoclassical-style Capitol Building (1930) and Venetian Renaissance-style Stamford House (1904), which are now linked. Much care was taken to restore their inherent Victorian beauty while infusing them with Kempinski's signature bespoke hospitality.

Today, The Capitol Kempinski Hotel Singapore has pride of place in the integrated lifestyle complex, Capitol Singapore, which also boasts exclusive residences, the restored Capitol Theatre and a lifestyle mall. It is the Kempinski brand's first hotel in the Lion City, and adds to its 80 over five-star hotels and residences in 36 countries around the world, including Grand Hotel des Bains Kempinski St. Moritz and Hotel Adlon Kempinski Berlin.

And it promises to be an exquisite experience, where rich heritage meets the finest traditions of European luxury.

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN WITH VICTORIAN AND ART DECO INFLUENCES

The Capitol Kempinski Hotel Singapore is a restoration masterpiece, featuring a design that stays true to the buildings' colonial art deco and Venetian aesthetics, even as they have been updated for contemporary style and elegance.

Precise lines and geometric shapes in the interiors bring visual continuity to the design aesthetic. Travertine limestone columns, piano rosewood lacquer finishes and Italian marble floors are a nod to the richness and opulence of Venetian design, and are beautifully juxtaposed against muted warm tones, from the embossed wallpaper to the original Chengal wood flooring. The result: understated grandeur with a distinct warmth.

High corniced ceilings, dramatic archways and grand windows offer sweeping views of the city and an abundance of natural light that shifts with the day. Singapore's mascot, the Merlion, inspired the patterns on the lamps and cornices in each room, a subtle tribute to the Kempinski's new home.
